	3. Pursuant to a telephonic request made by a Mrs. Coerver of Senator Goldwater's office concerning the availability of the "green substance" used in the detection of a recent theft in the Agency, I stopped by the Senator's office and left for his perusal photostats of several pages of police equipment catalogs where the dye can be obtained.
	4. At the request of Mr. Sanderson of the White House staff I have authorized the Office of Logistics to supply furniture to Mr. Kersten's office.

A cable to this effect has gone out; however, I understand that is also the broker for the rice. 25X1A9A 11. Participated with Ed Saunders and both Macy, Bureau of the Budget, to request Funds for Frojects AQATONE and clear this with Mr. Hughes but there seems to be no doubt that approval will be given. While we were there Bob said that in his consideration of our problems during discussions with other people, particularly Bob Amory, he had an impression that the agent-type of espionage was a fruitless effort and that more of our money should be spent in such things as AQUATONE and he said that in looking at our 1957 budget the Bureau thought they would like to have some statement along these lines. There was a clear indication that he thought we ought to cut down on the espionage type of activity. He also said that anytime either I or a member of my staff was going to the AQUATONE test base he would like to go along and look it over. - 15. I had a long talk with Mr. Wilkes, another of Mr. Winkler's attorneys, who said that he had had a conversation with Mr. Winkler on the telephone. The gist of his call was that it would cost us $545,000 to buy the Winkler property (this is $120,000 more than I had figured on) but that Mr. Winkler wanted to assure me that if price was the thing that was keeping us away from this site he was willing to negotiate the matter further.
